

Case Study

How The Cheesy Cap Cooked Up the Perfect Logo with LogoDesign.Net

The Cheesy Cap was born in the heart of Portland, Oregon, from a simple idea: handmade, wood-fired pizzas baked with love and delivered hot to your doorstep. Founder and head chef Maya Russo started the business from her home kitchen during the pandemic, where she used to make small-batch pizzas for friends and neighbors. But word spread fast because when you pour your soul into pizza, people taste it.

What began as a weekend hobby quickly turned into a full-time gig, and Maya knew it was time to step up her branding game. She had the recipes and the vision, but she needed a logo that captured her love for the craft.

The Business Challenge

With a growing customer base in Portland, The Cheesy Cap needed a memorable logo to stand out in the local food scene. But hiring a graphic designer felt too expensive, time-consuming, and overwhelming for founder Maya, who wanted full control without back-and-forths or delays.

Looking for a simpler solution, she turned to LogoDesign.Net's logo maker tool after a colleague recommended it as a faster, budget-friendly alternative.

How LogoDesign.Net Helped

Using LogoDesign.Net's logo maker, Maya followed a seamless process that blended creativity, strategy, intuition, and usability.
